perception is not something that happens to us or in us writes alva noë it is something we do in action in perception noë argues that perception and perceptual consciousness depend on capacities for action and thought that perception is a kind of thoughtful activity touch not vision should be our model for perception perception is not a process in the brain but a kind of skillful activity of the body as a whole we enact our perceptual experience to perceive according to this enactive approach to perception is not merely to have sensations it is to have sensations that we understand in action in perception noë investigates the forms this understanding can take he begins by arguing on both phenomenological and empirical grounds that the content of perception is not like the content of a picture the world is not given to consciousness all at once but is gained gradually by active inquiry and exploration noë then argues that perceptual experience acquires content thanks to our possession and exercise of practical bodily knowledge and examines among other topics the problems posed by spatial content and the experience of color he considers the perspectival aspect of the representational content of experience and assesses the place of thought and understanding in experience finally he explores the implications of the enactive approach for our understanding of the neuroscience of perception
