national linguistic ideology has been at the base of most historical processes that whether they are complete or not have brought us to the current reality a world of languages that represent with greater or lesser exactitude the diversity and convergences of human groups various of today s thinkers have predicted the decline or even the end of national ideologies in the area of language postmodernism would make the linguistic affiliation of the community individuals irrelevant de ideologise language use and extend plurilingualism and language alternation in association with a new distribution of physical or functional spaces of linguistic practice but is this true everywhere are languages now nowhere the core of collective identity or are we witnessing a distinction between languages that because of their magnitude status strategic position etc can continue to exercise the function of national languages and languages that have to renounce this function has national linguistic ideology really ceased to make sense what other strategies should the historic language of a given geographic area employ if it wants to continue forming part of the life of the community that is set up there what kinds of languages are desired by politicians intellectuals and philologists this book aims to bring some thoughts about these questions an important locus for english speaking writers the region of tuscany is also well represented in the italian literary canon in tuscan spaces silvia ross focuses on constructions of tuscany in twentieth century italian literature and juxtaposes them with english prose works by such authors as e m forster and frances mayes to expose the complexity of literary representation centred on a single milieu ross uses the works of writers such as federigo tozzi aldo palazzeschi vasco pratolini and elena gianini belotti to seek out alternative visions of tuscan space and emphasizes that each author fashions the region in a manner which reflects their personal poetics background and experiences theories of cultural geography space travel and narrative contribute to ross s consideration of the dualisms commonly employed in writings about tuscan y such as country city nature culture female male and self other all of which are in turn affected by her interrogation of the local foreign opposition that underlies the study as a whole
